Accessing the TAJ Online With Routledge/Taylor & Francis

We are excited to announce that the first step has been completed in the move of the Transactional Analysis Journal to our new publisher, Routledge (part of the Taylor & Francis company). The January 2018 issue is now available online via the Taylor & Francis website at http://tandfonline.com/rtaj .

Members should have received an email from Routledge/Taylor & Francis on or about 11 December providing them with details about how to log in to the website, set up their accounts, and establish the level of access they are entitled to based on their membership category. (All members have full access to the current issue and all back content except for Supporting Members, who have access to the current year and one year prior.)

Members who are new users to Taylor and Francis online should first register an account by visiting www.tandfonline.com . Once the registration form has been submitted, a confirmation email will be sent to the email address used in registering. That email will contain a validation link to activate the member's account. Unfortunately, these emails can be caught in spam filters or blocked by service providers, so it is important to check this and add "@tandfonline.com" to your safe senders list. Once registration is complete, members can sign in and then click on the link in the email from Routledge/Taylor & Franciso (which provides vouchers) to activate access to their account.

Once that is done, click on "Your Account" next to your name, click into "Account Settings" from the drop-down arrow at the top of the screen, and then click on "Access Entitlements" on the left hand side where members will be able to access the journal content.

For help with any difficulties, please contact: support@tandfonline.com

The Transactional Analysis Journal archive will also be moving from SAGE to Routledge/Taylor & Francis. We anticipate that the entire archive will be online by the first week of January 2018. Members will then be able to reach the archive through the vouchers they are sent for TAJ access (as just described).
